The National Corn Growers Association is a membership organization with 28 affiliated state associations; thus it would be the parent organization. Members in the Illinois Corn Growers Association are also members of the National Corn Growers Association (NCGA) because a portion of their dues paid goes to the NCGA. The NCGA has a PAC Committee and the Illinois Corn Growers Association has their own PAC Committee. Not all state associations have a PAC Committee. Because NCGA and ICGA both have separate segregated funds and we each make our own contributions--Illinois' to only Illinois congressional representatives and senators and NCGA to candidates from any of the various states--we try to coordinate so that we do not exceed the contribution limits for each candidate.
